

MINERS READY TO COMPROMISE

Prospects Grow Brighter For An Agreement With The Operators Soon.

SCALE OF 1903 IS NOW TALKED OF

President Mitchell Lost Point He Raised At The Joint Meeting Today-The Shot-Firers Question Is Discussed.

(By Associated Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., March 22.—At today's session of the joint committee of operators and miners of the central competitive district a motion by President Mitchell that a sub-committee be appointed to which the differences be referred was lost. The operators with the exception of Robbins of western Pennsylvania, voted against it. It is understood Mitchell wanted to submit a proposition for a restoration of the scale of two years ago to the sub-committee.

Shot-Firers Law.
The shot-firers law in Illinois was practically the only subject under discussion by the joint committee. The Illinois operators want that question disposed of before taking up the subject of wages. The claims were advanced by the operators that under the Illinois law the cost of mining has been advanced by 2 to 12 cents a ton and has placed Illinois operators at a disadvantage in competing with other bituminous states.

The miners stood for an advance of 12 1/2 per cent, in accordance with the demands submitted in the convention. The operators stood for a renewal of the present mining scale. Both sides are willing to compromise, and each is waiting for the other to make the first advance.

Would Accept 1903 Scale.
The miners are prepared to accept the scale of 1903, which would be an advance of 5.55 over the present scale. They expect that such a proposition will come from the operators after the latter have grown weary of advocating a renewal of the present rate. More than half the operators are said to be ready to restore the 1903 scale and have made up their minds that nothing less will be accepted by the miners.

The situation in Illinois is understood to be a serious obstacle in way of settlement. Even in Illinois the operators will pay the increase of 5.55 per cent provided the agreement will be interpreted in the old way by the miners—that is, that the scale of 55 cents a ton at Danville will include the mining, firing and loading of coal. This would mean that the wages of shot-firers would be included in the mining rate of 55 cents. The shot-firers would be paid by the operators as is provided for under the law, but their wages would be deducted from the basing scale, which would place Illinois on an equal footing with other competitive states.

Miners Want Peace.
The miners are not yet prepared to accept such a proposition, but some of their officials privately admit that a settlement might be reached on the grounds indicated. They are willing to make reasonable concessions in order to maintain peace, and were they granted the advance of 5.55 per cent they could still pay the shot-firers and receive more than they do under the present scale.

Francis L. Robbins, the Pittsburgh operator who is generally supposed to hold the key to the situation, did not indicate his position in the meeting of the scale committee. His views are generally understood, but his side the operators in the other states before declaring himself.

That Mr. Robbins will propose a settlement acceptable to the miners in the Pennsylvania district is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

President Mitchell takes a hopeful view of the situation, while asserting that the result of the negotiations is a matter of doubt.

The joint scale committee is not expected to be ready to report to the joint convention before Friday.

POMMELED SUITOR OF HIS OWN GIRL

Consul Clerk at Madison Faces Assault and Battery Charge In Police Court.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., March 22.—William Kingston, a young machinist, has charged Albert Anderson, a consul clerk in the capitol, with assault and battery. The matter is the culmination of a romance. Kingston's sweetheart was Miss Alice Gallagher, a charming young lady. It appears Kingston's company was not liked by her and she dismissed his suit. Mr. Anderson became the favored one. The dismissed suitor took his fate very hard and made threats, as reported to the police, to kill the young woman and himself. A police officer was at various times set to watch Kingston, and finally he said he was resigned and would not do violence. However, it appears that he followed Mr. Anderson and the girl several times and made remarks toward them of unpleasant character. This caused the physical encounter in which Kingston was thrashed. Mr. Anderson was arraigned in the municipal court this morning, pleaded not guilty and will allege in his defense that Kingston's threats and conduct were such as to frighten Anderson and impel him to take defensive measures.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, March 22.—President Roosevelt held an extended conference today with Attorney General Moody, Secretary Taft and James R. Garfield concerning the adverse decision rendered in Chicago yesterday by Judge Humphrey in the beef packers' case. No details of the conference were obtainable, but it is certain Secretary Moody proposes to look carefully into the law bearing upon the matter with a view of ascertaining whether an appeal from the decision of Judge Humphrey by the government will lie.

It is understood that there will be no contest, a satisfactory arrangement of property interests having been made. Mrs. Huntington has prepared to sail for the Orient immediately after obtaining an interlocutory decree of divorce. Mr. Huntington left the city for Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Huntington have two grown daughters and one son.

PARNELL RELIC IN ENGLISH PAWNSHOP

Casket Presented to Great Leader by People of Drogheda in Soak at Bournemouth.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, March 22.—The statement that the large silver casket presented to the late Charles Stewart Parnell by the people of Drogheda in 1884 is now located in a pawnshop in Bournemouth, and can be redeemed by the payment of $500, has given rise to considerable speculation as to how the precious relic found its way there. John Howard Parnell, brother of the late Irish leader, is unable to throw any light on the subject. When he last heard of its having been sold two years ago, it was then, according to his information, to be seen in a London pawnbroker's establishment. He says he bought up as much of his late brother's effects as he could, but among the articles he was not able to take over were the Drogheda casket and the famous Kilmainham chair.

COLLEGE BASEBALL OPENS IN THE EAST

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, March 22.—College baseball for 1906 makes its first appearance on the athletic stage today when the Lafayette College nine lines up against the soldier team at Fort Monroe, Va. It will be a week or two before the most of the big eastern teams take to the diamond, but reports from all sources go to show that it will be a big year for college baseball. The season will be most interesting in the change some of the large colleges have made in the matter of coaching. Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Lafayette, Columbia, Cornell, Syracuse and others will make southern trips. Amherst is the only team that has scheduled a western trip. The latter part of May the Amherst team will go west to play Chicago, Wisconsin and one or two other of the large universities.

PARIS TAKES OFF SACK CLOTH A DAY

Celebrates the Mi-Careme—People of Fashion Rub Elbows with the Lower Classes.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Paris, March 22.—Today, for the time being, Paris threw aside her garb of sackcloth and gave herself up to the pleasures of mi-careme, the great carnival which brightens the middle of the period of fasting and prayer in the French capital. From early morning the boulevards were crowded with gay maskers and merry-makers bent upon getting their fill of the occasion. The masked balls concluding the festivities tonight were of more than ordinary splendor and brilliancy. The toilets seen at these, however, were no more magnificent than some of those which appeared in the street pageant earlier in the day. Many of the beauties on the floats were costumed and jeweled by the most fashionable tradespeople.

Originally entirely a festival of the lower people, the celebration of mi-careme has come to be quite a fashionable hobby. The street pageant, which takes hours to pass along the boulevards, is still made up of the lower classes, but rubbing elbows with pretty laundresses, flower makers, butchers, bakers and what not, safe in her incognito of mask and domino, the lady of quality oftentimes seeks jollity and adventure.

The immense street crowds are very good-natured on these occasions, so that, properly escorted, the lady of the highest degree may fear no danger. At a certain hour the law forces everybody to unmask and when this strikes, like Cinderella from the ball, the grand dame who has been playing at canaille flits to the safety of her own home.

The mortgage later was assigned to Mrs. Shaw, who now is foreclosing on the mortgage to try to get her money. The farm is located at Carcroft, five miles above Wilmington, and comprises more than 300 acres of high land commanding a fine view of the Delaware River.

RUSS WORKMEN ELECT PET DOG

Mill Hands At St. Petersburg Ridicule The Manifesto Of March 8.

SAY DELEGATES HAVE NO VOTES

Popular Assembly Is A Parliament In Name Only, Serving As A Forum For The People To Air Their Grievances.

(Special to The Gazette.)

St. Petersburg, March 22.—The workmen in one of the mills in this city, to render the elections ridiculous, have formally chosen as their delegate a pet dog called Rosa. They declared that the selection was made in a spirit of economy, as if the dog should be elected it would cost the government only 7 cents a day to maintain, instead of the allowance of $5, and at the same time the dog would be quite as useful as a representative of the workmen's interests as any of their candidates who have a chance of election.

The workmen of another factory designated as their delegate the factory chimney on the ground that it would not suffer from machine-gun fire.

Parliament in Name Only.
The imperial manifesto and the ukases of March 8, which incorporate in the fundamental law of the empire the provisions for a national assembly promised in the manifesto last fall, are disappointing. They constitute neither a constitution nor a "bill of rights" for the Russian people. They do create a popular assembly, but the powers granted to it are so hedged about with restrictions and conditions that it will be rather a parliament in name than in fact.

Nevertheless, by the terms of the manifesto the emperor himself is powerless to revoke what he has now given. This constitutes the great victory which the people have won. They at last have an authoritative medium through which they may make their voice heard, and it is in this assembly, probably, that the great struggle against prerogative and privilege will be fought out.

Upper House Is Buffer.
An examination of the documents shows clearly that their purpose has been to trench the government at every point against the assaults of the people. The council of the empire, or upper chamber, as reorganized, provides for the election of only half the members, and these are chosen by the nobility, clergy, zemstvos and commercial interests, so that with the other half directly nominated by the crown the government always can interpose a decision of the council as a buffer between it and the direct representatives of the people in the duma, or lower house. Moreover, certain important questions are excluded entirely from the jurisdiction of the parliament and are consigned to committees, or "commissions," as they are called, of the council of the empire. But the composition of such committees is restricted to the members appointed by the emperor.

Czar Is Still Master.
The main weapon retained by the emperor is his power to dissolve parliament at will. This, coupled with the government's ability to promulgate "temporary laws," leaves the government master of the situation whenever it cares to employ this means of ridding itself of parliament when the latter has grown too inquisitive or troublesome.

Instead of leaving to the chambers the creation of the rules and questions of procedure which are to govern them, they are carefully prescribed in the ukases. It is apparent that the cumbersome and complicated machinery devised is largely for the purpose of crippling parliament in its struggle against the government. Enormous power is concentrated in the hands of the presidents of each house, only the president of the lower house being elected.

PACKERS WIN VICTORY IN PLEA FOR IMMUNITY

Judge Humphrey Holds Individuals Are Exempt from Prosecution, but Corporations Must Stand Trial.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, March 22.—Sixteen packers as individuals won the legal battle which they have waged for the last three months before Judge Humphrey in the United States district court and they were freed Wednesday from prosecution under the indictment which charges them with attempt to conspire to violate the anti-trust and interstate-commerce laws.

They were sustained in their contentions that they are entitled to immunity from prosecution upon the subject matter of the indictment because Commissioner of Corporations Garfield and his agents, backed by congressional acts, had previously compelled them to furnish information upon the same subject matter to the department of commerce and labor.

While the individual packers were freed by the court and exempted from prosecution the five corporations which are also named as defendants in the indictment must stand trial. The decision of the court was to the effect that the special pleas urged to bar prosecution under indictment were proper and legal as to the individuals, but that while the individuals were entitled to immunity the corporations could in no way claim that right.

The trial of the five corporations will not be taken up until after next September.

EXPERIMENTS IN FIGHTING-THRIPS

Government Bureau Finds Method of Destroying Pestilence on Growing Tobacco.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—For some time past the Bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agriculture has been conducting a series of experiments at Quincy, Florida, into the ravages of the "tobacco thrips," which have of late injured shade-grown cigar-wrapper tobacco in Florida, Georgia and Texas. These thrips in feeding on the upper surface of the leaves remove the sap from the lateral veins, which when fermented and ready for the trade become of a much lighter color than the other part of the leaf. These light veins are objectionable, since they appear in the manufactured cigars and has the effect of reducing the price of the tobacco at least fifty per cent. When it is taken into account that the tobacco thus injured is the highest grade grown in this country, it will be seen that the loss thus occasioned is large. The thrips first appear upon the lower leaves and spread to those above, depositing their eggs in tissues of the stem and leaves. "When the tobacco is harvested the thrips live on the weeds in the field until cold weather drives them into hibernation.

The Bureau recommends farmers not to locate the seed bed in the tobacco field as it furnishes a breeding place from which the thrips spread into the field. When necessary so to locate, however, frequent applications of kerosene emulsion and arsenicals should be made. The experts of the bureau used this application in its work in Florida and found no trace or any harmful effect upon the aroma of the tobacco. They say the emulsion should be first applied when the plants are in the seed-bed and continued twice a week until the pests are annihilated. The following formula is recommended: two gallons of kerosene, one gallon of water and one-half pound of hard soap.

The bureau thinks the pest can be almost entirely checked if the spraying is started while the plants are in the seed bed and continued regularly. Ten weeks is estimated as the maximum period in which spraying is necessary. In combating the bud-worms of tobacco it is necessary to apply Paris, green to the bud, care must be taken not to spray the emulsion into the bud more than is necessary. Tobacco may be sprayed during the day until six inches in height, for even if burning should take place the leaves injured will be those that would soon drop off. As the plants get larger, they should be sprayed in the evening, shortly after 5 o'clock. Care should be taken that the spray be distributed over all the leaves as it must come in contact with the thrips when sprayed in order to be effective. It has been roughly estimated that $20 will cover the cost of spraying an acre during a season. The use of a knapsack sprayer costing from $5 to $15 is recommended as the best method of applying the emulsion.

CITY INVADED BY A DIVINE HEALER

Notorious Schlatter Is Tarrying in Janesville for a Few Days—

Is Going to Preach:

Schlatter, "the divine healer" unshorn of visage and garbed in raiment that does not bespeak much material prosperity, is in Janesville. He promises to preach and heal the sick at the G. A. R. hall Sunday afternoon at three and Sunday evening at 7:30.
Once upon a time, several years ago, the newspapers gave much space to the "miracles" performed by this strange individual. He says he is 62 years old and relates more or less astounding tales about being buried in a lonely grave in the mountains of Colorado for forty days, being offered five million dollars and the hand of Hetty Green, the richest woman in the world, for curing her of stomach trouble, and other familiar press agent's vagaries. He claims to heal by faith.

What Do You
Feed YOUR Baby?

If the Stomach Causes Distress,
There's Something Wrong.
Does Baby's stomach cause trouble?
Does constipation make Baby's days miserable and nights restless and increase your cares and worries?
Before you become really alarmed and call in the doctor to give the little one a lot of drugs, just stop and think about what you have been feeding Baby. Have you let it eat "what the others eat?"

Perhaps Baby is three or four years old and therefore you feast it on meat and potatoes and gravy and pie? If that's true, and it is true in countless thousands of homes, there is no mystery about Baby's stomach trouble.
You may reply that Baby has to have nourishing food just the same as "anyone else." True enough. But it means—and it must be, if it is to grow up, and be healthy and robust—nourishing food that it can digest easily.
Most mothers know, though many of them never apply this knowledge, that in wheat Nature has provided for us one food which contains all the elements necessary for the sustenance of life and the positive assurance of health and happiness. When prepared in the form of Malt-Vita, wheat is the perfect food for babies, whether they are weak and sickly, or strong

GRIMM'S LETTER.

Jefferson, Wis., March 20, 1906.
Publishers of The Gazette, Janesville, Wis.

My Dear Sir: In common justice I know you will not deny me the favor of having the enclosed letter to the voters of this Circuit published in the daily and weekly "Gazette" as speedily as possible. Tell the management to send me their bill at the regular rates and I will remit.

Your friend,
GEORGE GRIMM.

P. S.—Please send me a copy of the daily in which my communication appears.

To the Voters of the Twelfth Judicial Circuit, and particularly to the Voters of Rock and Green counties:

Recent comments appearing in the press of Rock county, not prompted, however, I am convinced by any unkindly feeling toward me, would lead one to believe that in case of my election, the business of the Circuit would be in a large measure removed to Jefferson county. If you have any fears in that respect, permit me to set them at rest. I have ever been open and frank in all my actions, even when they might subject me to criticism, and I do not want to be misunderstood in this matter.

If I choose me for your next Circuit Judge, I will enforce your laws, not nullify them. I will hold court at the respective county seats of each county in the circuit as provided by your laws; I will transact the business of each county in the county where it belongs under the law, so far as lies within my power.
I will give each county as much time as the work may require, and probably more.

Realizing that the bulk of the Circuit is in Rock county, and that Janesville is the county seat of that county,
as well as the center of the Circuit,
I will, as I have repeatedly stated, make Janesville my headquarters, and if necessary to do justice to my duty, take up my residence there. I will not put parties to the inconvenience of trying their cases outside of their own counties, but will do the business of each county at its county seat, as required by law, unless removed by the action of the parties themselves.
To do otherwise would not only be unjust, but exceedingly foolish on part of the Judge who expects his constituents' good will and future support. His time is paid for—well paid for—by the people. It belongs to them; and if he does not give it in the manner and spirit as their written law and common justice require he is not fit to be their Judge, and indeed, would not long remain such.

I repeat, Janesville will be my headquarters; I will do the business of each county at its proper county seat so far as lies within my power; and I will give my whole time to the people, dividing it up in such manner between the three counties as the work may require. If you do not believe me, vote against me; because if I have not your confidence, that I will do right by you all, I don't want to be your Judge. My aim has always been to be just and upright, and to gain the good will of my fellow men by fostering good will toward them.
I may often err in judgment, but I will never waver in desire to do right.
With this assurance on my part,
if you still believe you must have a man whose present residence is in Janesville, you have a splendid opportunity to elect one; and you well know that both your candidates are able men who also aim to do right.
With hearty good wishes to you all,
I shall remain your friend,
GEORGE GRIMM.

BUT ONE TICKET IN FIELD AT EDGERTON

E. M. Ladd Renominated for Mayor at Primaries—Sharp Contest
for Treasuryship.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, March 20.—The primary election held here today proved interesting and a good vote was registered. With only one ballot, the republican, in the field, it narrowed the contests down to individual positions on that. The total vote polled was 316 and E. M. Ladd, the present mayor, received 222 votes for re-nomination. The treasuryship created the most spirited fight between two candidates, Geo. W. Doty and H. H. Dickinson. The latter and present holder of that office received 172 votes to Doty's 122. W. M. Clarke for assessor, 130 votes; J. L. Holton, 1st ward alderman, 98; Weetman Dickinson, 2d ward alderman, 90; in 3rd ward with no candidate on ballot the present representative from that ward received 7 votes. The same supervisors were renominated, E. C. Hopkins, L.
E. Gettle and Henry Elbott. A number of ballots marked double and some unmarked were found, while as usual in a regular election a number of scattering votes were cast.

The state of Wisconsin just now enjoys the distinction of having two railroad commissions. One is the body of three members established last year and the other is the single railroad commissioner who performed the duties of the office before the establishment of the new commission.
He holds over because, having been elected by the people, there is no power to remove him. His term does

Thought Wife Was Dying.

With tears in his eyes the millionaire banker laid bare his romance and its strange culmination in a polygamous life. He said he was ashamed, but it could not be helped.

"I have told my legal wife," he said, "of the matter, and she agreed to ignore Mrs. Colt; yet all is amicable between Mrs. Colt and myself."

He said he had known Mrs. Colt from childhood, and after her husband died five years ago was on close terms of friendship with her. In October, 1903, his wife was ill when he was called to a national convention of bankers in San Francisco. Mrs. Colt accompanied him.

"She did not intend to go all the way," said Mr. Kiley. "When we left Brooklyn my wife was not expected to recover. On the way west I told Mrs. Colt I wanted to marry her. She was willing. We thought my wife would be dead before our return to Brooklyn, and I was suffering from a general breakdown."

"Sick Woman Recovers."

"When we reached Hammond, Ind., we married under our true names. That marriage cannot be denied. We continued on to San Francisco. I went to the convention, then took Mrs. Colt down to Los Angeles. We spent a month there and then returned east."

"My wife did not die, but grew better. There was nothing we could do except keep everything secret. I bought a home at 215 Brooklyn avenue, furnished it, and made it over to Mrs. Colt. Since then I have maintained the home and have given her everything she could want."

"I don't see why the public should intrude in private affairs of this nature. I made a mistake and am willing to pay for it. I am supporting my first wife in the best possible way and giving my second wife everything she wants."

Hubby's Precious Pige.

"Where is my new meerschaum pipe?" he bawled anxiously from the library. "Oh, here it is, dear," cried his wife, running to him with a queer dark object in her hand. "I knew how hard and unsuccessfully you had been trying to color it, and so this afternoon I got out my paints and painted it in this lovely, drawnwork pattern of brown and green and blue."

Legal Wife, Who Was His Brother's Widow, Agrees to Ignore Existence of Her Rival, and He Maintains Both in Splendor.

New York, March 22.—Thomas W. Kiley, a millionaire bank president and hardware dealer in Brooklyn, has for the last three years kept two wives in separate establishments, less than half a mile apart.

Mr. Kiley said he had no excuse to offer save that he loved both women, and he married the second only when he felt sure his first and legal wife was about to die.

Kiley's legal wife lives in his mansion at 201 Jefferson avenue, with her two sons, and two daughters by her first husband. She was the wife of James Kiley, a brother of Thomas. James Kiley died twelve years ago and she married her brother-in-law.

The second wife is housed in a magnificent place at 215 Brooklyn avenue. She is known as Mrs. Flora A. Colt, and lives with her son by her first husband, who was a westerner. She was Flora Brown, daughter of Guy R. Brown, a wealthy hardware dealer of the eastern district of Brooklyn, with whom many years ago Kiley started in life as a clerk.

Expose Due to Lawyer.

Kiley, who is 63 years old, is president of the North Side bank of Williamsburg and is reputed to be worth several millions. He has a large business under the firm name of Thomas W. Kiley & Co., 57 Grand street, Brooklyn. He also is interested heavily in a structural iron business.

The facts came to light through the filing of a suit against Kiley and wife No. 2 jointly by John S. Griffith for $37,500. Mr. Griffith was counsel for wife No. 2 a year ago in a suit for $250,000 against Kiley. He says there was no trouble between them, but he was ill, and she wished to provide for his future in case he should die and all of his estate go to his legal wife. The matter was settled out of court. Kiley charges that Griffith's large fee was a "shake down," and that it was by advice of counsel that he refused to settle.

BOX AND BASKET WOODS.

Enormous Quantities Used Make It Necessary to Find New Supplies.

The amount of wood annually consumed in the United States for packing boxes and baskets cannot be given in exact figures, but it is much greater than is generally realized. The state of Michigan alone has 48 box-making establishments, with an annual product valued at $2,272,621. Other states have a yet larger output. There is hardly a business in the whole country which would not be unfavorably affected by a serious shortage in packing-box material.

The growing scarcity and consequent high prices of most of the woods now used in this industry make necessary a search for other suitable woods and for means of regenerating their supply in order that the future demand may be met and a reasonable profit be insured to the manufacturer without overtaxing the consumer.

The study made by the forest service will include the questions of supply and demand as regards woods now used, the introduction of other woods as possible substitutes for the scarcer species, the demands of the trade, the physical and mechanical properties required in box and basket woods, and the methods of manufacturing them.

Comfort for Workers.

A little wisdom and welfare being deemed good things for workers, a building has been reared by a New York company with library, reading room and assembly hall. The library will contain 1,000 volumes on technical subjects, interesting and instructive. The auditorium will be open to the various departments of the company for entertainments and lectures. Of the latter a number will be given by experts eminent in the various fields and on subjects in which the men are most interested.

Plutarch relates that when Hannibal was asked who were the greatest military leaders in the world's history, he gave the first place to Pyrrhus, the second to Scipio, his own conqueror, himself taking third place.

A highly ornamental annual of unusually rapid growth, forming regular pyramids from two to three feet in height, having a cypress-like appearance. The leaves are slender and of a light green until September, when they change to carmine and blood-red. Even the closest friends of Judge Sale do not predict a victory for their candidate but they say he will carry Rock county. If he does this and fails to carry Jefferson and Green the result can be predicted as a Grimm victory. This is what The Gazette would avow by urging the election of Dunwiddie.

In another column will be found Judge Grimm's statement on the judicial situation. Read it carefully and you will see that he promises nothing of importance on the subject. No one said he would not hold court in Jansville when the court convened here in regular session but what was said was that the open term would be at Jefferson and this he does not deny.

THE EDITORIAL PAGE.
Melville B. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, rejoices over the signs of a revival of the editorial page, and attributes this in no small part to the yellow journals. If this is true, it is the best service the only service—that yellow journalism has performed for the country. There was a time when the editorial page was the chief part of the newspaper, but that was the day of personal journalism, when a man like Horace Greeley put his own personality into the editorial page of the Tribune to such an extent that it was Horace Greeley who spoke and not the Tribune. Since then there has been a decline in the editorial page. It has lost in vigor, in sincerity and in intellectual power. Some papers practically discarded it altogether, and even today one of the greatest metropolitan newspapers makes so little of its editorial page that it possesses no influence whatsoever. There are, however, many signs of a revival of editorial power. Mr. Stone is a good judge, and he has noted them. There are unmistakable proofs that the people want virtue and sincere editorial comment. The newspaper that fails to supply it will decline in circulation and influence. But to amount to anything the editorial page must be sincere. Mere "smartness" is no substitute for an earnest desire to proclaim the truth.

THE SUPREME COURT AND THE SENATE.

In the uprising of the people for the curbing of monopoly and the correction of corruption abuses it is significant that the President, the House of Representatives and the Supreme Court of the United States are now in line with the people, while the only branch of the government which is obstructing their will is the senate. The recent decisions of the Supreme Court demonstrated that it is clearly in sympathy with the movement to establish "the square deal" in business, says the Wall Street Journal. This fact is all the more interesting because the members of the Supreme Court are appointed for life, and are furthest removed of all the representatives of the government from the direct power of the people. The President serves only four years, at the conclusion of which he must make an accounting to the people at a general election. The members of the House of Representatives are elected only for two years, when they must again undergo examination and review by the people of their districts. But the Supreme Court judges owe their appointment originally to the executive power, and serve for life. Yet the very fact that they serve for life, while raising them above popular clamor, at the same time removes them from possible political and financial influences. The members of the Supreme Court have reached the summit of their careers. There is no greater honor which can come to them. They are not looking out for the possibility of gaining fat fees from corporations when they leave public life. Consequently they are in a position to exercise their great powers with entire independence and with as little of the element of self-seeking as it is possible for human nature to attain. Thus it happens that the Supreme Court, while from one point of view the most aristocratic of all the branches of our government, is in fact quite close to the people, and it has been inclined during its long career, and especially in recent years, to interpret the constitution and the laws in a liberal way for the advancement of human rights and equal opportunities. This does not apply in so marked a degree to the inferior courts.

The senate, however, although containing many able men, some of them progressive and liberal, has, as a whole, been representative of special rather than of popular interests. It has not been near enough to the people to be wholly controlled by them, and yet has not been so far removed above political and financial interests as not to be swayed by ambition of power and wealth. This is no reason for abolishing the senate, but it does justify in large measure the agitation for the election of the senators by popular vote.

Consolation Prize

A Pittsburg widow, away from home married a widow, according to "Harper's Weekly," of the usual type, "plain" but "good." After his marriage he telegraphed to the eldest of the children, a girl of fifteen.

"Have won a prize. Am married. Will be home tomorrow."

When the bride and bridegroom arrived the children were watching at the door, and at sight of their future mother gave a little gasp of consternation.

The second child, a boy, nudged his sister, and whispered:

"Say, Nell, that must have been the consolation prize that pa got!"

One Mystery Explained.

Racine Journal: Several years ago the government was compelled by a court decision to pay $1,000,000 to the mail carriers of the country, that being their bill for time put in over the supposed eight hours that they were to work. People can now understand why the federal authorities are so particular about the carriers working overtime now. They do not care to have any more bills of that size presented.

But One Cloud on Horizon.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Careful scrutiny of financial and technical journals and fair summaries made of reports of business conditions lead to the statement that there is at present but one cloud on the industrial and financial horizon of the United States. The cloud is the fear of a general coal strike.

Eliminate that element, and there is every reason to make confident prediction that the year of 1906 will go down in the history of the United States as one of the most prosperous this country has ever known.

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR JUDGE DUNWIDDIE

Tried to Defeat Judge Bennett. The idea of inducing candidates to take the field against the sitting circuit judge is no new occurrence in this state. It has been done in many of the circuits, and on one occasion against an honest and able and upright judge as the late Honorable John R. Bennett. Upon that occasion a candidate was brought into the field against him by a few Jansville lawyers for personal reasons. What success attended these efforts? In nearly every case with the result that the people resented the action of the lawyers, and by their votes approved of the administration of the sitting judge. It may be remarked in passing that the present opposition to Judge Dunwiddie embraces some of those lawyers who were most active in bringing out a candidate against Judge Bennett some years ago. May it not, therefore, be presumed, and is it not a legitimate subject of inquiry, if the present opposition to Judge Dunwiddie is not based upon personal reasons rather than upon any fault of Judge Dunwiddie, or his lack of ability, and especially in view of the fact that not one valid reason has been suggested as to why he should not be re-elected?

In a London hospital a wave siren is used to test what sounds a deaf person hears. If the tuning fork is not sufficient, the sound is increased by means of a resonator.

that soon this untoward element will be eliminated. The attitude of the miners and of the operators lead to the assumption that neither side is anxious for a conflict. Evidently kindly interests are at work striving for a peaceful solution of the situation, and the fact that the operators have, in time of peace, been preparing for war, and now have large stocks of coal on hand, is not one of the least important factors that lead to optimistic thoughts.

Justice to Poor and Rich.

Winneconne Local: A man at Omaha who could not find work held up a mail carrier to get means to buy food for his hungry wife and family. The United States court in that city sentenced him for life for the offense. Which is right—although tough. A moneyed man, confessed to the same court that he had stolen 212,000 acres of government land, and the same court sentenced him to imprisonment for six hours and to pay a fine of $500. Which is an instance of the kind of justice that breeds anarchists.

The Great Food Depot.

Rockford Register-Gazette: America will may be called the food depot of the world. In the eight months ending February 28 the exports of breadstuffs aggregated $130,723,290, an increase over the like period in the previous fiscal year of just $77,675,732. The gain made in the exports of provisions, cotton, mineral oils and breadstuffs for the same period over last year totaled $130,772,543. This is regarded as a remarkable showing, especially as the population here is growing steadily and the consumption in the home market is keeping ahead of the increase in numbers.

CITY OF GOD A REALITY

Opinion of New York Preacher Regarding Heaven.

MAY SOON BE LOCATED BY SCIENOS

Rev. William Coburn Believes That Astronomers Will Show to the Earth's Inhabitants Jehovah's Throne, Around Which All Other Planets Revolve—Wonderful Estimate of City's Size.

In his sermon to a large congregation at the First Baptist church of Macon, Mo., the other morning the Rev. William Coburn of New York, an evangelist, took the position that "The City of God," or the New Jerusalem, was as material and as real a city as London, New York or Kansas City and expressed himself as being confident that it would yet be located by astronomers and men of science and could be seen by the inhabitants of earth before death, says a Macon dispatch to the Kansas City Times.

The text was, "Wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a city."—Heb. xi. 16. Mr. Coburn said in part:

"We know that our globe was at one time a part of the sun. The inclination of the axis and the constituent parts as shown by spectrum analysis make this almost certain. Thrown off in a gaseous form, it gradually cooled down as the ages rolled until it became this solid earth upon which man now lives.

"It is impossible to conceive the spirit it taking up the various relations of life in the world without a body and a sphere of activity for that body. The logic that requires a body and a world here demands a body and a world beyond the grave.

"It was a supreme moment in the history of the race when Galileo placed his eye to the telescope, with its newly discovered powers. Up to that time the universe had been earth centered. The sun, the moon and the stars all revolved around it. But Galileo found that instead of our earth being the center of the great unmeasured universe it was one of the smallest bodies of the solar system and that it together with others much larger, revolved around the sun, which, with other systems like our own, was revolving around another and a larger and a more central sun.

"This led to the sublime question, which was presented at a meeting of famous astronomers, 'What is the center of it all?' An impressive silence fell upon the assembly of students. Then the question was replied to in this language by a man who stands at the very head of astronomical thought and discovery: 'I know not what others may think, but it seems to me it must be the throne of the great Jehovah!'

"If you tell me where this great sun is about which all other suns and stars and worlds revolve, I will tell you where God's city is, for the throne is in the midst of the city, and the hour may be near at hand when astronomy will be able to exactly locate, out amid the brilliant constellations yonder, the very spot the center of the universe of God! There are those who are studying to that end right now, and they feel the wondrous enthusiasm which is born of the thought that they are approaching nearer and nearer the hour and the place.

"The city of God is a place so vast that it bewilders all attempts at computation. One great mathematician devoted a full two years to the development of the measurements that were given John in the Revelation. His deduction was that if the race was to continue on earth 6,000 years longer and to increase at the normal rate, there would be space for a five room house, each room fifteen feet square and fifteen feet high, for every member of the race and that this would only take up one-third of the area of that great city! Another third would remain for boulevards and beauty spots. Another third would be for the palace and the throne of the King of kings.

"But there will be some things lacking in this great city of God. The city, however, will be the galley for it. There will be no cemeteries, with their beautiful flowers and foliage. There will be no physicians, no undertakers, no drug stores. No somber hearses will glide down the golden streets of the new Jerusalem, for there will be no death there, and no night."

PUCKERLESS-PERSIMMONS.

New Japan-American Product Beats Old Style Face Twisters.

Persimmons without a pucker are now being grown by the department of agriculture, says a Washington special dispatch, to the Philadelphia Press. Owing to the chemical composition of the old fashioned persimmon, which caused the lips to pucker after eating this fruit, the sales have been anything but gratifying to the farmers.

In order to remedy this defect the department of agriculture imported some Japanese persimmons and crossed them with the American product. A finer specimen has been produced, and in the near future the department will begin the distribution of persimmon trees which will produce fruit guaranteed not to pucker the lips.

NED HELMS WILL GO TO ARIZONA APRIL THIRD

Will Take Position Under Lafayette Myers in Beet Sugar Manufactory.

Ned Helms of this city is to leave on the third of April for Phoenix, Arizona, expecting to locate in Glendale, ten miles from there. He has a position in view under Lafayette Myers, formerly connected with the Rock County Sugar company here but now at the head of a beet sugar factory there. Glendale is in the Salt River valley, a strip of dry but very fertile land twenty miles wide and a hundred miles long. The much-talked-of Roosevelt dam is being constructed sixty miles above Phoenix to create a lake that will supply the valley with water throughout the year and it is expected that the region will become one of the most valuable pieces of agricultural land in the country. Mrs. Walter Helms' father and mother recently purchased a farm near Glendale and have located there.

KICKERS' KOLUM

Editor Gazette: Why is it not possible for the people to accommodate the people? I refer in this instance to the utterly nonsensical idea of forcing Third ward voters to travel a mile away to vote. Isn't it possible and isn't it feasible to conduct a polling place at least on primaries at some point in the business district, as formerly, so that those who live in the northern and central portion of the ward may vote without going out of the way a long distance to cast their ballot? If necessary, let the city purchase another voting machine for regular election use in an uptown precinct or let's have another ward—any idea that will give all an equal show.

THIRD WARD VOTER.

Editor Gazette: This is a sidewalk kick. If you haven't crossed the tracks at the North-Western passenger depot on the west side of Academy street you haven't enjoyed the pleasure we first ward people indulge in every time we go to and from the city. Mud completely covering the walks so that a lady must wear boots to avoid besmearing her feet and clothing. A city the size of Janesville should be perfectly able to care for its crosswalks, yet these same crossings in many parts of the city are in deplorable condition in sticky, wet times. Where is our valiant street cleaning force?

FIRST WARDER.

Read This
Milton Junction, Wis., March 21.
Janesville Gazette, Janesville, Wis.

Gentlemen:—In regard to this judicial situation, I for one and for others as well would like to know where we stand in this matter. A trio of lawyers from your town were in town the other day and have worked our people pretty hard to get in line for Sale of the judgeship would go to Grinnam. Of course they carried the idea that Dunwiddie had no show, and I am afraid they convinced a lot of people that he did not have. Now, for myself, I signed the paper for Judge Dunwiddie and will vote for him if he is a candidate when it comes to election. Now, we have it in our heads that if Janesville does not get together on some one candidate that it will be a lost cause even if one of the candidates got practically all the votes from Milton. A Janesville lawyer made the statement in my hearing that in his judgment, that in the next few days we would see the votes sliding in big crowds to Judge Sale, if not they were lost. Now, as one of the members of the republican committee here I would like to know if Judge Dunwiddie has a fighting show, as I said before he will get my vote if he is still a candidate when it comes time to vote. (The three lawyers carried the idea that he would withdraw, although they did not say as much.) Now, if you can give me any light on this subject, either for my own benefit or for information to whatever voters I might influence, I will be glad to receive it; if you can not, why forget that you received it. Yours for a Rock county judge.

"Signed,"

N. B. By the Editor—The above letter was received by the Gazette this morning. Reading that, there are others who are hearing the same arguments that Judge Dunwiddie will withdraw, the Gazette reproduces the letter so that all may have an opportunity of knowing the methods being used by supporters of the opposing Rock County candidate to depreciate Judge Dunwiddie's campaign.

Judge Dunwiddie will not withdraw from the contest. Why should he? He has been already assured a goodly portion of the vote of both Jefferson and Green counties and with a strong endorsement from Rock county, where he has long resided, should be elected. Judge Dunwiddie is the candidate of the people. He stands for re-election as their candidate—not backed by a coterie of lawyers. This point is one that should be carefully considered by the voters. Judge Dunwiddie seeks their endorsement and not that of the attorneys. It is not unusual for bar associations to seek to oust the presiding judge for personal reasons and usually the people, the voters and taxpayers of the district, re-elect him in face of this opposition. In this connection the Gazette wishes it understood that in endorsing Judge Dunwiddie no reflections are cast upon the voters of the county who have voted for Judge Dunwiddie in order to retain the circuit judgeship in Rock county. The importance of this will be seen by the Green county residents to whom a trip to Jefferson would be a hardship. Judge Dunwiddie will be a candidate at the polls on election day and it is up to the voters, the taxpayers, farmers, businessmen, professional men and working men, to vote regardless of the dictation of a coterie of attorneys who seek to control judicial affairs.—ED.

NEW YORK PLANS TO ANNUL THE PROJECTS

Insurance Law That Is Being Proposed Would Do Away with the Proxies.

The proxies which have been secured by officers of the mutual life insurance companies and by others, including Thomas W. Lawson, will be invalid if the life insurance bill approved last night in committee is passed by the New York legislature. The assembly committee on insurance in executive session last night voted to report favorably to the assembly today with amendments assembly bill No. 964, introduced by the joint special investigating committee, which would legislate out of office on Nov. 15 next all the directors and trustees of the mutual insurance companies and would nullify all proxies hitherto secured.

Proxies Are Made Invalid
The most important amendment provides that no proxy executed prior to Sept. 15 next will be valid or can be voted at the reorganizing election, which the bill sets for Nov. 15. It was stated that the amending and reporting of the bill were at the instance of the investigating committee on insurance. It is said upon reliable authority that the reason for the pushing of this particular bill is the fact that the election of trustees of the New York Life insurance company would take place on April 11 and it is the desire of the committee that this election be held on that date.

Bill Will Be Rushed Through
According to the same authority the amended bill will be reported in the senate today in behalf of the Armstrong committee and the effort will be to press the bill to passage with all possible speed so that it may be enacted and placed in the hands of Governor Higgins early next week. The bill affects every domestic mutual life insurance corporation whether incorporated by a special act or under a general law and provides that the annual election of every such company which under its charter or by-laws would be held "hereafter and prior to Nov. 15, 1936," shall be postponed and held on that date. All present directors shall hold office until then and until their successors are elected.

Then all of 'em keeps a sayin', "That sermon jist hits Nate!" An' "You'd better start in prayin' afore it gits too late!"

An' sech like kinds of chaffin' That riles me up a bit, Though I hev to keep on laffin' R' else I see they'd never quit.)

PICNIC SAVED FOR ROCKFORD BY STARR

Janesville Delegate Instrumental in Keeping Woodmen Celebration from Chicago.

The annual convention of the Northern Illinois and South Wisconsin M. W. A. Picnic association convened yesterday at the city hall in the city of Freeport and was called to order by President B. Wagner. Mayor Dittmar delivered an eloquent address of welcome, which was ably responded to by State Consul E. Renolds of Rockford. A committee on credentials was then chosen and reported 125 delegates entitled to seats in the convention. Chicago and Rockford were placed in nomination for the 1937 picnic. District Deputy Harris of Rockford made an earnest and able plea for the Windy City. F. P. Starr championed the Forest City's cause and strenuously objected to the holding of the picnic in Chicago, stating that it was the original and largest picnic association in the jurisdiction of Woodcraft and urged the delegates not to sound its death knell by taking the picnic to Chicago. A ballot was then taken and Rockford was victorious. Chicago received no support outside of its own delegation. Thursday, June 7, is the date set for the picnic this year at Freeport.

At the conclusion of the business session an elegant banquet was served at Suetz's hall. Music was furnished by the Harris orchestra and the hall and tables were beautifully decorated with flowers and colors of the order. After the banquet short addresses were made by Judge Cronkite of Freeport, Judge Clarity of Galena, B. Renolds of Rockford, J. E. Harris of Chicago and F. P. Starr of Janesville. The officers for next year are: President, B. Renolds; vice-president, J. A. Alden; treasurer, John Sullivan; secretary, Col. F. E. Anderson, all of Rockford.

HAMLIN GARLAND

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HAMLIN GARLAND

Barnett was heedful of his words at home and made light of the probable opposition of the miners, but Louis, with a boy's ability to discern what was going on, soon acquired a pretty clear idea of the plan, and when Ann asked him not to return to the heights on Monday he was ominously calm, but asserted his right to go where he pleased.

"Bob wants me and needs me, and I'm going. You can put me in jail, but that is the only way. If there is going to be war, I am going to be in it, and I'm going to be on the side of the miners."

Ann wrote a swift and fervent note to Raymond:

"I am trusting Louis to your care because he will not stay. You have won his heart from us, and we are powerless to prevent his return. Guard him, for the sake of his boyish sweetness, for my sake."

She wrote no further, for as her mind dwelt upon that camp of ruffian miners and their desire for battle a bitter resolution swept over her. "I will test his love for me." With cold intensity she announced her purpose. "If you insist on going back to that camp I shall go too."

"You must not go," said Louis. "It's no place for you."

"It is no place for you," he said to Ann. "I'm going."

He asserted himself again. "I can take care of myself."

"Mr. Raymond has asked me to keep you here." She went to him and put her arm about his neck. "Stay with me, laddie. I am missing you these days."

In the end she seemed to prevail, but she took no pleasure in her victory, for he went about the house like a young eagle plannor. Nothing was the news of the camp interested him, and when the time came for the sheriff to start on his new raid, he became greatly excited.

"There's going to be a battle," he said to Ann. "I'm going."

"No, no," she pleaded.

He turned upon her with a resentful stamp of his heel. "I can't stay here, like a kid."

She changed her tone. "Very well. When shall we start?"

He looked at her steadily, and into his eyes came a softer gleam. "I've just thought," he began reflectively, "you can stay with Mrs. Kelly till we build a wing for you. She's a nice woman and lives in the cunningest little log cabin. That settles it. We will go right away, today!"

Ann was at a loss, but did not show it. "If you are determined to go, then there is no use in waiting. Let us start at once!"

While Mrs. Barnett suggested what to wear Don ordered a carriage to take Ann and himself to the train, and Louis saddled his horse for his return trip up the stage road. "I'll beat you up," he shouted to Ann and galloped away with shining face.

The railway which ran up Bear canyon was still building and had not yet reached the divide, so that a stage ride of some twenty miles connected the town of Grand View with Sky camp. Ann and Barnett were noticeable persons in the car, which was filled with roughly clad workmen of all kinds. Ann was conscious of their admiration for her, and it deeply annoyed her. Two or three of the better dressed men, who were on speaking acquaintance with Barnett, came up to ask him what he thought of the strike.

"I didn't know it was a strike," said he, ignoring their evident desire to be introduced to Ann.

"Oh, it's a strike all right. Your man Mackay wasn't much hurt, was he?"

"Not badly."

"He was a little too previous. I hope the sheriff won't try to do anything more about it. The boys up at Sky are a little sharp set about that business. Ain't going up there yourself, are ye?"

"Yes, I've always been on good terms with my men. I think I can help to arrange some sort of a compromise."

The two miners looked at each other. At length the older of them said in a tone that meant a good deal to ears accustomed to western inflections: "Well, I reckon the whole thing has been exaggerated. My claim is just below Bozoe, and so, of course, I don't know much more about Sky than you do. Still I wouldn't advise your going in at this time."

At Grand View a couple of stages met them, and as Ann waited on the platform for Don to secure a carriage she observed that on the seat of each of the coaches two guards sat, negligently nursing rifles which glittered in the sunlight. Soon the whips began to crack, and the coaches rolled away one by one, leaving Barnett to follow in a road wagon which he had hired for their own especial use.

The sun was sinking to mid-afternoon, and Mogalyn on the left was in full glory of orange and garnet. The air was keen and crisp, the sky cloudless, and the road, except for an occasional mudhole, was very good. Barnett remarked, "We ought to pull into Bozoe before dark on these roads."

Night came abruptly. A thin gray scum rose swiftly on the western sky, and suddenly grayed the brightness of the sun. The world grew instantly stern and cold. The road, after climbing a ridge, descended into a gorge with firs on either side, and when they came out upon the flat meadow to the northwest of Mogalyn only the lights of Skytown could be seen.

At the moment that Don was pointing out the lights two horsemen appeared in front and in the middle of the road.

"Halt!" cried a clear voice.

The driver pulled his tired horses to a stand so energetically that his hands rose above his head.

"Is Donnelly Barnett with you?" asked one of the men as he rode nearer.

"I'm Barnett. What do you want of me?" asked Don coolly.

"Not a thing," answered the horseman. "That's just it. We have no use for you, and I've been watching to meet you and say that the boys want you to continue your quiet, uneventful life at the Springs."

"Who are you?"

"We're a couple of Skytown vedettes. Who is the lady?"

"That doesn't concern you. Go on, driver."

The driver took up the reins, but the voice of the vedette growl sterner.

"Stay where you are! Then, turning to Barnett: 'I'm your best friend, Donnelly. The boys understand that you are backing Mackay in his plans, and it isn't safe for you to enter the camp. I advise you to turn around right here and go back.'

Ann spoke up. "Please let us go to Mr. Barnett. He is taking me in to meet my brother, and I am cold and hungry."

There was something thrilling in the calm, clear sweetness of her voice, and the first of the vedettes, pressing nearer, leaned from his saddle to ask:

"Who is your brother, lady?"

"His name is Louis Rupert." He is only a boy, and I am going in to care for him."

"Rob Raymond's kid. I know him," replied the vedette. "But I thought he was visiting you in the Springs."

"He was, but he went back to the camp today, and I am very anxious about him."

"He's all right, lady, so long as Rob Raymond has him in hand. You are welcome, but Barnett is on the outside and must stay there."

"I decline to acknowledge your authority," responded Barnett, now thoroughly angry.

The horseman laughed softly, irritably. "Manners don't go with us at the present time. I must ask you to camp right here or go back to Grand View. I'll communicate with the president of the union. If you are here to talk compromise the men will be glad to meet you, but my judgment is that you better retire to Grand View. I will see that this lady gets to her brother."

Ann was not a timid girl, but the thought of riding away into the blackness of the night with these sinister guards made her flesh chill and her nerves creep. "Don't leave me, Don," she whispered.

Barnett stormed at the horseman. "It is impossible! If I am forced to go back she must go with me. What right have you to interfere in our plans?"

The answer came quickly, coldly, every word telling. "I'll tell you. The boys have learned that you have been chiefly instrumental in pushing the sheriff into another raid, and if trouble comes they'll kill you. It isn't safe for you to be on the hill tomorrow. Now you needn't be afraid to trust the lady to me." The vedette removed his hat.

"I am not a man to be feared by women."

Ann again spoke. "I can't consent to your going into danger for me, Don. Turn back, and I will go on."

"It is madness," he said in a low voice. "These men are not fit escorts for you. We will both go back and wait until morning."

Ann's teeth were chattering with cold. "I dread that long drive. We must be almost at our destination."

The two horsemen conferred together, and at last one of them returned to say: "Driver, you may come on until you reach the first cabin at the foot of the hill. There the lady will get out, and you will drive Mr. Barnett back before daylight tomorrow morning."

As they drew up before the slumpy door the leader of the vedettes rode forward and said gently: "Lady, the road from here to the summit is lined with cabins, and no harm can possibly come to you while I have you in charge. Or, if you like, you can stay here till morning; but I would advise you to go on to Mrs. Kelly's. There is no cabin suited to your needs on this side of the peak."

Ann, still and weary and hungry, rose in her seat with a sort of desperation. "I will go," she said with trembling voice.

The vedette, dismounting quickly, helped her to the ground, while the second man, leaning low on his horse, entered into a muttered conversation with an unkempt man in the doorway.

Barnett argued and insisted on going on to Kelly's.

"Not one step farther!" sternly commanded the vedette. "But you can sleep here till daylight if you wish."

Ann interposed. "Don, I beg of you to go home. I don't want you to go any farther. I am not afraid now. This man will take me to Mrs. Kelly's. I'm sure of it, and Louis will be there by this time, and Mr. Raymond."

"Sure thing, lady. And it isn't late— not more than 7 o'clock. We'll almost get there in time for supper. Can you ride a horse?"

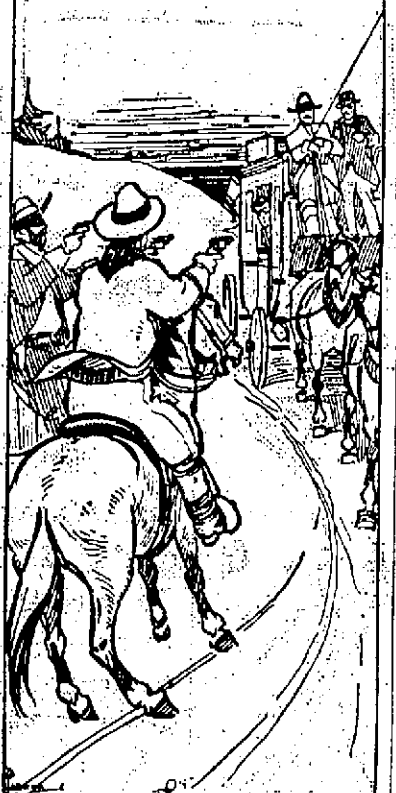

"Yes."

"Well, I will put you on my saddle, and I will walk and lead the horse."

The light from the doorway fell upon him as he approached her, and the sight of his boyish face reassured her. As Barnett saw her rise to the saddle he burst out: "This is preposterous! You must not go up there. The boy isn't worth it. I'm going with you or fight!" He drew his revolver, but some one caught his hand from behind and twisted the weapon out of his grasp.

"Go on, Jack. We'll take care of him," called the man in the cabin door. As the light of the lamp was left behind and the darkness settled round her a convulsive terror seized upon the girl. The horse, stumbling over loose rocks in the road, which ran back and forth on the hillside like folds of birds, passed now and again under dark and silent pines.

Once, as her guard came back toward her, something rose in her throat, some elemental dread, and her breath rushed hoarsely through her lips. "If Robert only knew my need of him," she thought, "he would surely come to me."

The man's voice was gentle as he said: "You see, lady, the camp is in a terrible excitement. We heard today that the sheriff was coming with a posse, and the boys kind of hold five or six of those one lungers in the Springs responsible. They are particularly down on Barnett for putting Mackay up to that trick. But you'll be perfectly safe at Kelly's."

At length Ann's leader turned toward a dark, high point of rocks, the trail began to descend and a few minutes later they came to a warmly lighted cabin, on the door of which the guide resolutely knocked. The latch was immediately lifted, and a small, pale woman with a blur of yellow hair about her head appeared in the light.

"Mrs. Kelly, I've brought you a boarder," began the vedette.

Ann caught sight of a boy at the table and gave a cry of joy. "Oh, Louis, Louis!"

With a whoop the boy rushed from the cabin and flung his arms around her.

"Oh, Ann, but I'm glad to see you! Where is Cousin Don? Which way did you come? Rob has gone down to Bozoe to meet you."

Ann turned to thank her guide, who was looking at her with undisguised admiration.

"It was a great pleasure," he replied, with an assumption of grand manner. "Introduce me, please," he said to Mrs. Kelly.

"I must introduce myself first," said the little woman. "I am Mrs. Kelly, and your guide is Mr. Jack Munro."

Ann gave him her hand. "I thank Mr. Munro, but I think he should have allowed Mr. Barnett to come into shelter. It seemed cruel to send him back on that long, cold drive."

Munro remained unmoved. "Oh, he'll stay at Clayton's overnight."

Mrs. Kelly put in a word. "I think you better come into shelter. You must be cold and hungry. Won't you stop inside, Mr. Munro?"

"No, thank you. It is a great temptation, but I've work to do."

And so, chilled and hungry, Ann entered the pleasant home of the Kellys, and the terror of the dark ride became a part of the outer world, shut away by the strong, rude door.

"Bob has gone down to the stage office," explained Mrs. Kelly. "We thought you'd come that way."

Mrs. Kelly put Ann down to some tea and cold meat, and while she was still at the table and in the midst of her story Raymond flung open the door.

"Here she is!" he called to some one behind him, and his white face and glowing eyes testified to his great anxiety.

Ann rose to meet him with a rush of trust and confidence that filled her throat and rendered her wordless, but she held her hand toward him.

Miss Rupert," he said, "but there is no danger. The strike has not involved us. We are as peaceful as a farm here."

She smiled back into his eyes with more of liking than she had ever expressed.

"I am not afraid," she replied. "I am going to find the camp interesting. At any rate, so long as Louis is settled in his determination to be a miner, I must keep him in sight."

"It is a great pleasure to have him with me, and I am glad to be of use to him, for his own sake as well as for what you have come to mean to me."

Ann's lashes fell before the glow of his admiring eyes, and with this sign of weakness a flush of resentment again passed over her. "He must not look at me in that way," she complained to herself.

When Raymond left the house to walk back to his own cabin he resented for the first time the presence of Louis. He wished to be alone with the mysterious emotion which had swept back upon him at sight of Ann. He faced the night, out of which every shred of vapor had vanished, and the blue-black vault, blazing with innumerable jetting globes of light, invited to high thoughts, to serious imaginings.

His duty plainly was to lay hands upon the lad and hustle him back to Valley Springs and so put both brother and sister out of his life; but this was not easy. He argued that she was in no danger and that the change of air would do her good. "She will be interested in the mines," he went on in formless debate with himself. "The scenery is magnificent; and then, of course, she can go down at any time we think wise."

LABOR LEADERS AT WHITE HOUSE

Organized Workers Hear the President's Views on Matters of Interest.

ANTI-INJUNCTION BILL JUST

Executive Declares the Measure to Be Fair to All Concerned, but Points Way to Secure Its Defeat in Congress.

Washington, March 22.—President Roosevelt disagreed emphatically on several points Wednesday with President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and about 100 labor leaders who visited him at the White House to present a memorial setting forth the legislation desired by organized workers.

The memorial asked the enforcement of the eight-hour day on the Panama canal and in all departments of the government of the United States. The President held that the eight-hour day in Panama was not suited to conditions, and as to the United States, asked that specific instances of violations of the law be brought to his notice.

Use of the injunction.

The labor organizations opposed the pending anti-injunction bill on the ground that it did not go far enough. President Roosevelt said he considered the law just, but that it could be killed easily enough, for capitalists who considered it too radical would be glad to co-operate with labor in defeating it. The government, he said, had had occasion, a score of times, to invoke an injunction against combinations of capital, and never once, in his administration, against combinations of labor, but he added that he would not hesitate to ask an injunction against labor if he thought it necessary.

Exclusion and Immigration.

In regard to the Chinese exclusion law, the memorial complained that Chinese were being allowed to enter the country in spite of the law. The President agreed that it would be well to keep out Chinese coolies, but he insisted on more liberal treatment of the better classes of Chinese, saying he considered them no menace to American labor.

The President agreed, in the main, with labor's contention in regard to immigration, but he objected strongly to the protest against the order forbidding employees of the government from petitioning congress for legislation to apply to the heads of departments.

President Roosevelt listened carefully to the memorial and then made an extended reply.

"If your body objects to the passage of the proposed anti-injunction bill," said President Roosevelt, "I have no question that you can stop it, for there is not a capitalist concerned who, simply as capitalist, is not against it; though I believe that a goodly number of capitalists and wage-workers who are concerned primarily as citizens favor it. The law was worked over and substantially whipped into its present shape at a number of conferences between representatives of the railroad organizations, of the department of justice and of the bureau of corporations, with me."

"It goes as far as I personally think it should go, in limiting the right of injunction, at any rate no arguments have hitherto been advanced which make me think it should go farther. I do not believe it has any chance of passing, because there has been great criticism in both houses of congress against the attitude of the administration in going so far as we have gone, and if you think it is not far enough, why, you will have no earthly difficulty in killing the bill. Personally, I think the proposed law an admirable one, and I very sincerely wish it would be put through."

Executive Has No Favorite.

"As for the right of injunction, it is absolutely necessary to have this power lodged in the courts, though of course any abuse of the power is strongly to be reprobated. During the four and a half years that I have been president I do not remember an instance where the government has invoked the right of injunction against a combination of laborers. We have invoked it certainly a score of times against combinations of capital, I think possibly oftener. Thus, though we have secured the issuance of injunctions in a number of cases against capitalistic combinations, it has happened that we have never tried to secure an injunction against a combination of labor. But, understand me, gentlemen, if I ever thought it necessary, if I thought a combination of laborers were doing wrong, I would apply for an injunction against them just as quick as against so many capitalists."

STATES MUST CONTROL.

Insurance Legislation Does Not Belong to Federal Government.

Washington, March 22.—The Supreme court of the United States has declared, and never has been shaken or weakened in maintaining first, that insurance is not commerce, and second, that congress cannot impair the police powers of the states. This conclusion sums up the opinion of the house committee on judiciary and sounds the death knell of all proposed legislation looking to the federal control of insurance companies or other state corporations, except the railroads. Representative John J. Jenkins of Wisconsin, chairman of the committee, has drawn up the report, and he insists that there is no constitutional authority for federal control of insurance. An unofficial poll of the committee, taken after the members had studied Mr. Jenkins' opinion, shows that with practically no exceptions they agree that his conclusions are correct. In discussing the principle of state's rights, Mr. Jenkins says: "Let it be said kindly and not offensively that it is a monstrous doctrine, subversive of our dual system of government, to even suggest, after the distribution of these great powers between the federal government and the states, that the federal government, created by the states, can take from the states the power they have always enjoyed and expressly reserved to them by the constitution exclusive in the states. Hamilton himself never made such a claim." The advocates of federal regulation concede, according to the report, that insurance is not commerce, "has had great difficulty in marking the boundary line in each case as it has arisen between the power of the state and the commerce clause of the federal constitution, in each case jealously protecting each power as they came in conflict, and not until now, in a moment of excitement and intense interest, has it ever been suggested that congress can impair the police power of the states."

BIG TIME PLANNED AT NEW ORLEANS SOON

Plan to Make This City the Headquarters of All South American Trade.

New Orleans, March 22.—John F. Stevens, chief engineer of the Panama canal, has been named as one of the important individuals to address the Mississippi Valley Latin-American convention at New Orleans April 5, 6 and 7, and is down for an address on "Panama Canal Construction." Secretary of War Taft also has been asked to address the convention, as also has been H. Clay Evans, E. S. Benson, general auditor of the Panama canal commission; Jackson Smith, manager of branch labor and quarters at Christobal in the Canal Zone; Stuyvesant Fish, president of the Illinois Central railroad and many other prominent men from various sections of the Ohio, Missouri and Mississippi valleys. Governor N. B. Broward of Florida, in accepting his invitation, said: "I am thoroughly interested in the project and feel as you do, that there is no time like the present to make an effort to impress upon the nation the facilities which your section possesses for handling the commerce of the country."

"Not only is it our intention to get a share of the business of furnishing supplies for Panama canal construction, that naturally should be ours," says Chairman Forch, "but it is our purpose to build up sentiment in the west and middle west comprising the broad Mississippi valley and the south to develop trade and commerce through the southern gateway for all the Latin Americas. We want to be able to bring enough of the products and manufactures of this vast area through the southern gateway to make necessary a properly equipped and regularly operated line of steamers to all Latin American ports and thus afford a cheap and expeditious access to all those consuming centers which are now mainly supplied by Germany and England."

The railroads will offer a rate of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip, good to arrive in New Orleans April 5 and return to destination April 15. Other distinguished individuals who have been heard from are: Gov. Jno. H. McLeary of Nebraska, Gov. Jeff Davis of Arkansas, Gov. Polk of Missouri, Gov. Warren of Michigan, Mayor B. F. Dunne of Chicago, Gov. J. O. Davidson of Wisconsin, Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, O., Hon. Geo. W. Guthrie, mayor-elect of Pittsburgh; H. C. Barlow, secretary of the deep waterways commission of Chicago; Col. J. J. Sullivan of the Cleveland, O., chamber of commerce; E. S. Shannon, secretary of Nashville, Tenn. chamber of trade; J. H. Johnson, secretary of Oklahoma City chamber of commerce; C. B. Murray, secretary Cincinnati chamber of commerce. Preparations are being made to care for 2000 delegates.

No Fever at New Orleans
The official announcement by representatives of the boards of health of Texas, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana, that the suspicious case of fever recently under autopsy was not yellow fever, and the immediate and wide publicity adopted by the Louisiana state board of health has practically revolutionized the sentiment in the south as to the honesty of New Orleans in the matter of reporting cases and implanted a confidence on part of neighboring states that no other incident could have done. The death of the patient was a matter of great moment as by the autopsy the disputed ante-mortem diagnosis was settled and by dying the victim became a benefactor to the entire country. The constant presence of Dr. J. H. White, surgeon United States marine hospital service, is another source of security, for it was he who, aided by the citizens, stamped out the fever last year so quickly and effectively as to leave no room for doubt as to the safety of this section this summer. The Public Health association has been reorganized and every ward, precinct and block auxiliary has begun work of inspection and the campaign of fumigation, cleaning and killing the stegomyia-faciata mosquito is in progress. Similar measures have been adopted all over Louisiana, especially where fever occurred last year.

OPERATORS' SIDE OF THE COAL TROUBLES

Statement Sent Out by the Heads of the Anthracite Movement to the Public.

That the Public may have a clearer understanding of just what the points at issue between the anthracite miners and the operators really are the following statement from the head of the anthracite mine operators is published. The matter comes directly to the Gazette office from the bureau of publicity of the operators in New York and is said to be an exact statement of the case.

It is a mistake to assume that an eight-hour day and a ten per cent wage increase represents the sum total of the demands of the anthracite miners. They insist besides on a uniform wage scale for 146 separate and distinct classes of workmen about the mines. The adoption of their plan would work a revolution in mining. They demand equal pay for the engineer who runs a little ten-horse power engine and the man who has a giant Corliss in his charge. They allow no more for the men working under great difficulties and danger than for the same class of workers at posts of ease and simplicity.

For years operator and employee have recognized the different value of labor in different localities and even in the different sections of the same colliery. The new and uniform scale would place every man on the same basis, increasing the wages of some men as much as 150 per cent. The average increase, under the uniform scale, would be near 30 per cent for outside men. The proposed schedule would mean a veritable revolution in mining conditions.

Figures taken from the records of the Lehigh Valley Coal company typify conditions generally. There are holding engineers in the Hazleton mine of the Lehigh valley division who now receive 13.4 cents per hour but who would, under the uniform scale, receive 33.3 cents.

The uniform schedule of 12 1/2 cents an hour demanded for all boys working as slate pickers would result in more than doubling the remuneration of thousands of the youngest boys. There are plenty of men who are not able or do not care for heavier work, who are getting around 12 1/2 cents an hour and up to 16.1; yet these children who work as slate pickers would receive nearly as much. Some of them now get 5.9 cents an hour. The new rate would increase this 111 per cent.

There are masons in the Mahanoy and Shamokin divisions who would have their pay increased 115 per cent. They now get 17.4 cents an hour, and 37 1/2 is demanded.

Some screen tenders in the Sioux mine, same divisions, would receive practically twice as much as now. Certain breaker engineers in the Mahanoy and Shamokin divisions now receive 12.9 cents an hour. Their work is easy. It is without danger. It does not require more than ordinary ability. Yet it is proposed to more than double their salary, adding 117 per cent and making a total of 28.1 cents an hour.

Blacksmiths would have increases up to 61 per cent, dumpers up to 79, while platemen would get within a cent of double on their present pay. Other similar instances are numerous. Under the new demands, hundreds of employees would receive better than twice their present pay. There are watchmen whose wages now range from 9.1 to 19.2 cents an hour, some of whom would have 140 per cent added.

There are screen and picker bosses and car rollers who would profit 93 per cent; trackmen who would do even 4 per cent better than that. There are loaders who would get within a cent of $2.50 and breaker rollers who would receive $2.64 for every dollar they earn now in a given number of hours.

The sweeping demands of the Mine Workers would double the wages of many "inside" men. While the general average of increase for inside day labor would approximate 22.3 per cent, and most of the men thus employed would receive under the schedule at issue advances of one-fifth to one-quarter in their pay, there would be a great many men and boys working at the easier tasks involving less responsibility and less danger who would have their wages doubled.

There are seven pumpmen in the Hazleton No. 1 mine of the Lehigh division in the Lehigh valley district that would profit 167 per cent. These pumpmen have softer berths, "easier jobs" than others in the valley and receive now 10 1/2 cents an hour while the pay for this class of work in 23 representative Lehigh valley mines runs from 10.5 to 24.4 cents.

One of the easiest tasks in a mine is "tending door," opening and closing the doors as the cars approach and pass. Young boys usually do this work and naturally the wages are not high. In the mines mentioned the door boys get from 7.8 cents an hour to 12.9 cents. Yet the miners now demand that 15.6 cents an hour shall be paid all boys alike. This would mean doubling the doortender pay of those now securing the lower rate.

Inside masons in the Hazleton No. 1 mine get 16.2 and 21 cents an hour. The new demand is 32 1/2 cents for all, just twice what the low rate men now receive.

Others who would fare as well are some of the hoisting and slope engineers in the Prospect and Henry mines of the Wyoming division in the same Lehigh valley district. are now receiving 15.2 cents an hour. Some in positions requiring more work and care get 24.4 to 25.6 cents, but under the uniform scale 31 1/4 cents would be paid to every one alike.

Shaft foot men in the same division now draw 12.2 to 24.2 cents, but they would receive 25 and 28.1 cents, an increase of 104 per cent for the men with the smallest present wages, while some safety lampmen who are making 13.9 cents an hour demanded would make their increase 108 per cent.

It is apparent, therefore, that the idea that the Mine Workers' union demands only a ten per cent increase in wages is a delusion.
